

Research & Communication Institute about Europe

The Think & Do Tank of European dynamics

The word of the Président

Dear friends of European dynamics, you will be able to discover the functioning and development of the Institute for Research and Communication on Europe (I.R.C.E.) that I created with two people in 2002 during the draft European convention and which was relaunched in greater numbers and in a more diversified way in 2012, after consultation and observation of a still and more than ever existing need on the way of thinking and to act differently at the European level in order to preserve and always build, often with originality, in this space that must be astonished at every moment in order to remain united in diversity.

François CHARLES

Identity and positioning (1/2)

- Associative body Independent of which financially, evoking the expressions, reflections, views of a group of members, studies by researchers or contributions committing only their authors
- Open to all in the general European interest
- Both a think tank as a force for proposal and a generator of ideas, and an operational organization (Do Tank) for transcription
- Apolitical giving a voice to all tendencies in the conditions of constructive dialogue
- Generalist on main themes (defence, energy, digital, finance, research, transport, health, agriculture, etc.) but also on many others with a decompartmentalisation of observations, ideas and solutions
- Developing a European transversal approach across many countries and groups of countries

Identity and positioning (2/2)

- Working both on the search for the optimisation of public policies and on ecosystems for European dynamics that are not only EU in internal and external interdependence
- Through publications, studies, training, events, projects
- In a constructive approach to the charge and the defence, not hesitating to put on other glasses for better exchanges and a shared vision
- Communicating on news, projects and achievements made or planned in Europe by any form of organization or comparative approach, in particular by participating in the decoders of Europe
- Using an original and proven methodology in strategy, management and human sciences

The main directions (1/2)
