Business Development Trainer

I'm Janice-Love Bropleh from Liberia a Business Development Trainer, a Humanitarian, and an Entrepreneur. Over the past 3 years I've worked in training local entrepreneurs how to start, manage, and build their businesses which drew my passion to establishing my own business in 2014 named Afrik Polis & Deco that employs five persons and we are into African clothes design, home, office, wedding interior and exterior decorations and events planning.

My experience in this sector has earned me qualifications as Certified Trainer for the following business development modules:

- Ready4Finance Business Plan Training (Business in Development Network (BidNetwork) Netherlands)
- Build Your Business Business Plan Training (International Youth Foundation (IYF) USA)
- Passport to Success Business Plan Training (International Youth Foundation (IYF) USA).

Also run a non for profit (Love Foundation) which caters to the needs of less fortunate children in Liberia and we just launched a new program entitled the Girls Effect.

I'm married (2014) with a happy family.
I'm so excited in being a part of TechCampWA 2015 and I'm sure my interaction and participation will yield good results.

Dennis Issabella

Founder, Daisey-Bell Ltd

Issabella Dennis is the founder of Daisey-Bell Ltd, a business venture in Ghana which involves ensuring that healthy and nutritious beverages are available in schools both public and private. It involves preparing them under healthy standards and dispensing them in beverage dispensers. These dispensers are both hot and cold and ensure that they are always at the right temperature for the children. This project does not exclude adults; I lead a team in preparing natural juices under hygienic settings which has minimal or no sugar in it. This is to slowly but surely encourage the intake of fruits and vegetables which are very nutritious to our health.

Issabella is interested in how to incorporate technology in expanding this business and also create awareness on healthy and nutritious beverages across board.

L'Administrateur du réseau Agri4young

Mon nom est Romuald DJEGBENOU. Je suis beninois. Je détiens un master en économie rurale. Je suis membre de plusieurs organisations des jeunes au Bénin dont Young Beninese Leaders Association – YBLA. Je fais partir également d'un groupe de jeunes qui pensent que la terre ne ment jamais qu'il faille que les jeunes s'y retournent pour réduire le taux de chômage au Bénin. Ainsi nous négocions des terres inexploitées que nous mettons en valeurs. Nous avons actuellement trois (03) hectares que nous cultivons.

Passionné par les TICs, je dispose un blog sur l'agriculture familiale et un autre blog sur la politique au Bénin. Je représente au Bénin l'alliance internationale des jeunes pour le planning familial. Enfin je suis l'administrateur du réseau Agri4young (<http://redirect.state.sbu/?url=www.agri4young.wordpress.com>) qui met à la disposition des jeunes professionnels agricoles des opportunités, des expertises dans les domaines tels que l'élaboration des plans d'affaires et recherche de financement pour les jeunes, l'Appui et conseil aux jeunes entrepreneurs agricoles. Ce réseau comporte aujourd'hui plus de 10 000 abonnés. Je suis très heureux de faire partir de cette grande famille de Techcamp.

James also won a Grant prize award from the United States Africa Development Foundation to support his enterprise.

Mumuni David

Software Engineer

David Mumuni from Ghana. I have a background in software Engineering and area of specialty in Mobile Technology. I've worked on over 20 mobile applications. In the past year, I have found a new hobby; Business Development. So for now, I do more of that. I love startups, startups and startups only, I will actually join your company if it's a startup so contact me now J.

I like art, history, travel, adventure and food prepared with love. I love people, Africa, startups, football and fun. Some weird stuffs about me; I believe a man who still wears a watch is organized and focus although he might never look at the watch because he has a mobile phone. And I think people who have a calendar on the walls of their room still live in 1994, they are waiting for the second millennium.

One more thing, I love to smile so when you see a smiley face all over the TechCamp event, chances are it's me so just smile back and say hi. If you can't wait till the Techcamp event to contact me, then hit me on Twitter (@ManLikeDiddy).

Okon Inah

Cross River Health & Demographic Surveillance System (CRHDSS)

Inah Okon recently received a Master of Science Degree in Geoinformation Science in Urban Planning and Management from the Faculty of Geoinformation Science and Earth Observation, University of Twente, The Netherlands. Earlier, he obtained Master of Science in Environmental Resources Planning and Management and a Doctor of Philosophy in Transportation Planning, both from the University of Calabar, Southern Nigeria.

He began his teaching career as an Assistant Lecturer in the University of Calabar in 2008 where he has now risen to the position of Senior Lecturer. He is a team member of the Cross River Health and Demographic Surveillance System (CRHDSS) with special interest in the application of Geoinformation Science in the mapping of disease pattern, spread and occurrence.

He is also presently working to promote cycling in his city where he hopes to motivate the urban population to identify with the cycling culture. This is in view of the global shift from GHGs induced motorised transportation, to eco-friendly options provided by cycling, and is based largely upon his experience in World Bank assisted projects in Europe and South American cities to promote cycling. His desire is to use social media network as much as possible to create cycling awareness among mostly young people and indeed the entire population. He likes reading and cycling.

Owusu Alex

Programmer

Am Alex Owusu from Accra, Ghana. A developer, writer and a blogger. I have a background in computer science and my area of specialization is in desktop, web and mobile development. For these past couple of years I have been working as a programmer with an NGO that aims at alleviating poverty through evidence; currently as I write this, am a freelance developer.

For the past few months, my focus has shifted to a new organization we founded called NERA AFRICA – A non-governmental organization that focuses on leadership and entrepreneurial growth for the youth of today and tomorrows Africa. I am with the conviction that true leaders do not create followers but rather leaders; and for the African continent to realize its full potential we need a deliberate, coordinated and targeted effort towards building real effective leaders with entrepreneurs who can take advantage of immense opportunities in this times.

I enjoy programming, writing, hanging out with friends and talking about the future of the African continent. I hope Techcamp will be a great opportunity for me link up with other like-minded persons, so together we can build a new Africa full of prosperity and joy. Please feel free to contact me via this mail address or hook up with me via twitter with @lezixb, or even add me as a friend on facebook with the name- Alexander Nana Owusu.

Sanogo Aïdas

Student, PhD

Aïdas Sanogo is a Burkinabe female PhD candidate in social anthropology, studying in Basel, Switzerland. I am currently in Côte d'Ivoire to carry out my PhD fieldwork. I consider myself not only as a world's citizen, thanks to my family background and my choice of career, but also as a Third world citizen craving for qualitative change. I believe that human beings are amazing creatures, able to do the best and the worst.

I love reading, and one of the authors that had a great impact on me was Paolo Freire, with his book "pedagogy of the oppressed people". I believe like Freire, that setting the example is a key component in both, upbringing and education. I am an incurable optimistic individual, who refuses to fall into fatalism and resignation when it comes to building a better world.

Some Noel

Software Engineer

Noel Some is from Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso and is software engineer, developer of mobile, web, desktop applications. Currently he's freelance developer, and is also ICT4D manager of BEOG-NEERE (website: www.beog-neere.org), an organization that dream of a better world in which ICTs are the guarantors.

In Noel's opinio any ICT solutions for development that does not include the needs of all social strata is incomplete, which is why he has always had a great passion as a software engineer to develop software solutions that meet the needs of the most marginalized people of society. Thus, the last year, he developed a software solution for declaring births of babies in rural areas using a simple SMS. Another project he is working on currently for the rural folks who are predominantly farmers in Burkina, is the establishment of a web system that will have useful features to meet the information needs of farmers .

The web system will have at least the following useful features:

- Market Information System.
- A voice kiosk which can provide information in local language.
- Online Management of Agricultural Cooperatives.

Uwase Florence

MA. Economics & Agricultural Policy

Florence Uwase, a Rwandese who is currently a masters student at the University of Ouagadougou Burkina Faso, in Economics and Agricultural policy. She is doing her research on the contribution of microfinance to the smallholders in rural area in Rwanda. She has completed her graduate studies in July, 2013 and during the university studies she has done different internships and trainings and she gained different skills on how to work with small agriculturist, project analysis, and computer skills.

In addition to this, she has contributed to the Rwanda Advisory Council as a surveyor on how the small holder farmers implement different policies in Agriculture sector. It is from this survey that she realised that most of agriculture policies are conceived, implemented without consulting farmers. This inspiration compelled her to continue her studies in economics and agricultural policy in order to contribute in influencing government to recognise the role of farmers in setting and implementing the agriculture related to improve their well-being.

Food security in Africa is my commitment.

Amidatou Yerima

Directrice de Rédaction du Journal LOEILDAFRIQUE.

Je suis YERIMA AMIDATOU, juriste de formation, membre fondateur de la Fédération Internationale des Journalistes Editeurs et Ecrivains Francophones (FIJEEF), Journaliste, Rédacteur, et Directrice de Rédaction du Journal LOEILDAFRIQUE.

Je suis membre active de la Ligue Togolaise des Droits de l'Homme (LTDH), travaille également pour le compte du Centre d'Etude et de Recherche de la Sureté du Développement (CERSD).

Passionnée de l'Informatique, je maîtrise quelques logiciels, j'encadre les jeunes filles dans la connaissance de l'outil informatique, dans l'application des outils de saisie et de traitement de texte pour la communication appliquée au développement de soi.

Disposant également d'une capacité rédactionnelle et d'analyse des faits socio-politiques, je dispose de connaissance en critique d'art cinématographique, création et gestion de micro-crédits, en photographie et la maîtrise de la langue française.

Je suis mariée, vivant en famille, une préoccupation qui me donne plus de responsabilité sociale, la capacité à appréhender les réalités sociales.

Je parle couramment et écris le Français, et approximativement l'anglais. Je comprends également d'autres langues du Togo.
