After the horrifying experience, Thomas went back and directed all his attention to building the Maze. The forests burned, the lakes and rivers dried up, and the oceans swelled. She also admitted to him that it was she who had unleashed the Flare on the former chancellor and the nineteen others, all because they had disagreed with her vision for the Trials. For years, fans have made it abundantly and enthusiastically clear that they want the same thing, so now seems like the perfect time to give readers the story of how the Maze began." Official synopsis Once there was a world's end. WICKED had tried to force the name Thomas upon him, and he had proven resistant. The parents refused to hand her over. John Michael, the Flare-ravaged founder of WICKED, appeared with a small chalkboard and wrote "WICKED is good" on it. Day after day, he watched them from the observation room. He became the little brother they never had. While they did stop the Griever right before it hurt Minho, they repeated the experience several times, having Teresa, Aris, and Rachel watch each subsequent time, leaving Minho traumatized. In the Scorch, Brenda and Jorge headed together toward the Crank city, while Thomas headed with the team to an underground tunnel, which someone explained was originally made by inmates escaping from a prison, and that WICKED had claimed it for their own purposes.

Someone said that they should also take Newt as a control subject, and both he and Lizzy were taken away. She also told Thomas that he meant the world to her. She then went and got Rachel and Aris, along with four backpacks full of weapons and syringes of poison that would kill quickly. His friends, who had been tolerating the idea of being sent in up until then, suddenly realized that Thomas and Teresa were not going in with them, and they felt betrayed. After the Purge, Thomas did not go to the observation room for some time. Next came WICKED, who were looking for an answer. Thomas and Rachel were horrified, but Teresa and Aris seemed resigned to doing it for the common good. I've just always done what needed to be done.Thomas: What do you...Ava: It was me, Thomas. Then came a plague, and fever spread across the globe. About a year after the beginning of the Maze Trials, Dr. Paige told him and Teresa that she suspected there was an outbreak of the Flare among some of the staff. Spilker charged him, and Thomas incapacitated him with a Launcher grenade. Suddenly WICKED agents forced their way in and demanded the girl, Lizzy, as they knew she was immune. And I'm sorry to have taken advantage of it so many times. You're crazy and full of passion and I love you." — James Dashner Previous Next The Kill Order The Maze Runner "Thomas: You're going to miss me, right?Ava: Don't fight it, Thomas. They did not have any more secret meetings in the maintenance room for quite a while, but then Teresa managed to hack WICKED's security systems and allowed the friends to meet. Right before they were sent in, Thomas went to say his goodbyes. After the initial group of forty or so were sent to the Maze, Thomas went to the observation room to check in on his friends; to his horror, he realized that they had all had their memories wiped, which had never been mentioned to him. All will be revealed.

It snowed that morning, which was unexpected but welcome, and Newt, Lizzy, and their mother watched from the window. They planned to get Paige to allow them to go into the Maze with their memories intact; once there, however, they secretly intended to lead the Gladers to freedom outside of WICKED. Paige told them that, being the few Immune available for the job, it was up to them to kill the chancellor and all nineteen other Flare-infected. The book also features the "purge" that is briefly mentioned in The Death Cure. When Teresa and some others came to help him, they found him sitting there, horrified at what he had done. When he finally did, the first thing he saw on the screen was Newt limping along with Alby helping him. Correctly answering the questions there unlocks a video message from Dashner and a short story featuring Ben. Nearly a year later, he met Jorge and Brenda, two Immunes who were going to be sent to the Scorch along with a team to conduct research. Now there are secrets. The prologue is told from Newt's point of view. He concocted a plan and got Teresa's approval. At the very end of the book, there was an email from Teresa to the WICKED staff, saying that she thought the plan for her to keep her memories and coordinate things telepathically with Aris was a good one. After three years, Thomas was finally allowed to meet Teresa, a girl about his age who had a room next door. They were also still working on the Griever itself and used this as a chance to test its mechanics, as well as study the reactions of both Thomas and Minho. And there are loyalties history could never have foreseen. Instead of riding the few miles back to the main facility with them, Thomas elected to walk there himself, even though it was at night; Paige assigned two guards to escort him. But Minho was planning something big - escaping WICKED. There are lies. However, the next morning Paige drugged Thomas with a cup of tea. Explain myself. Sometimes Chuck or Teresa joined him. The three (Newt, Minho, and Alby) took Thomas and Teresa into the outside world, only to be caught by WICKED. Thomas's memory was wiped and he was placed in the Maze. Let's get him prepped." — The book's last lines The Fever Code is a young-adult dystopian science-fiction novel and the fifth book in The Maze Runner series written by James Dashner.
